The Oregon University-Industry Bioscience Symposium is part of a broader collaboration between OSU, OHSU and the Oregon Bioscience Association to advance university-industry collaboration in research and workforce training within Oregon. This collaborative project is sponsored by the Oregon Talent Council.

The symposium will consist of talks from university and industry scientists on diverse topics in basic and applied bioscience. It will also include a poster session and reception, which will be an excellent opportunity for networking among faculty, students and industry professionals.
